Twitter Is

UK

1. Introduction

Twitter is what's happening and what people are talking about right now.

Perceptions of Twitter are highly subjective.

They're influenced by which accounts a person follows, who and what content they engage with, and what is said about Twitter in the media and elsewhere.

twitter is a cesspool

Dorian Lynskey
@Dorianlynskey

My guilty secret is that I actually love Twitter because lots of people I like are here, being funny and interesting, and they mean much more to me than the dickheads.

5:45 PM · Feb 13, 2021

So how can we zoom out and get a more objective view of what Twitter is?

2. Approach

We did some research to help you (and us) get a better understanding of what Twitter is.

To do this, we looked at the different Experiences that happen on Twitter.

What do we mean by "Experiences"?

Experiences are what you see, think, and feel when you go on Twitter.

They're not interests

They're not topics or conversations

They're not content

They're not engagement

We identified the Experiences using Semiotics

Semiotics analyses how we communicate with each other by studying words, images, stories, behaviours, tone, and context.

OI

We worked with research agency OI on the semiotic analysis of Tweets

Tone is spontaneous and informal, giving a sense of authenticity and honesty

Sasha Jones
@tartikovsky

Coworker used "anyway" as an email sign-off instead of "best" or "warmly" or w/e and honestly that's the only work mood left

7:35PM · Jan 13, 2021

Almost no punctuation and no capitalisation except to "quote" typical email language - even abbreviation of 'w/e'.

'Honestly' means what it says - it's gallows humour

The small story which leads to a big realisation, and brings us into the solidarity of realising 'yeah, this is where we all are right now'.

Ok this piece has been up for two days, and if the personal responses to it have shown me anything, it's that there is a world of massively loving, hilarious, passionate single mum families out there. What if that's the norm? What if society has misunderstood the whole thing?

This has been a burden in my life for a few years now and finally I have got to the bottom of it......

For a few years now someone who I trusted to follow me on my personal Instagram account has been consistently informing The SUN newspaper of my private posts and stories.

There has been so much information given to them about me, my friends and my family - all without my permission or knowledge.

After a long time of trying to figure out who it could be, for various reasons, I had a suspicion.

To try and prove this, I came up with an idea. I blocked everyone from viewing my Instagram stories except ONE account. (Those on my private account must have been wondering why I haven't had stories on there for a while.)

Over the past five months I have posted a series of false stories to see if they made their way into the Sun newspaper. And you know what, they did! The story about gender selection in Mexico, the story about returning to TV and then the latest story about the basement flooding in my new house.

It's been tough keeping it to myself and not making any comment at all, especially when the stories have been leaked, however I had to. Now I know for certain which account / individual it's come from.

I have saved and screenshotted all the original stories which clearly show just one person has viewed them.

It's ....Rebekah Vardy's account.
